LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.

WEATHER PROBABILITIES.—For this section probably cooler. Thursday: showers to-night, followed by clearing weather; variable winds.

ROBBED BY CONFIDENCE MEN.—Cornelius Knapp and his wife, of Jackson, Mich., were robbed by confidence men at Jackson City on Monday. Knapp, who is an old soldier, and his wife were sightseeing in Washington and while in the Treasury two men got into conversation with them, and one introduced the other and then himself, giving their names as Capt. Mason and Lieut. Northridge, of the "Channel Survey." The two took Knapp and his wife around, explaining the various sights of interest, and casually told him that they would have to excuse themselves for the afternoon, as they had to officially attend the unveiling of a monument to Gen. Custer at Arlington. Mr. Knapp said he and his better half would like to see the ceremonies, but was told the services were private, but as he was an old soldier they might manage to get him in. Accordingly the trio left in a carriage after dinner, ostensibly for Arlington, but in reality for Jackson City, to await the arrival, as they explained, of some other distinguished officers. In the meantime, "to pass time," they entered a building, met two others and a game of dice was suggested, but Knapp refused to play. The others did, however, and money changed hands with wonderful rapidity. Knapp was interested in the game, and was asked to change a bill, and he was asked to change it. He produced a roll containing $150 and started to count out $20 in change when one of the men, whom he identifies as William Northridge, snatched the roll and ran. Yesterday Knapp reported the facts to the police, together with a description of the men. Detective Slater found William Farnsworth on Fourth and a half street, and on being informed he was under arrest, he turned the other two and attempted to get away. A few sharp raps from Slater's club changed his mind. Northridge was also subsequently arrested.

THAT COLLISION.—The slight collision on the river on Sunday night last about four miles below this city, between the steamers W. W. Coit and Samuel J. Pentz, was mentioned in the GAZETTE Monday. Capt. R. A. Duer, of the steamer W. W. Coit, reported to the United States Steamboat Inspectors, in Baltimore, yesterday that his boat left Collingwood Beach on Sunday night, at halfpast eight o'clock, with 100 passengers for Washington. After leaving the beach he saw in advance of his steamer a tow of barges, and left them on the port side. Above them he saw the steamer Samuel J. Pentz, which blew two blasts to the Coit, which the latter answered promptly. The Pentz then bore down on the Coit and changed her course, and blew one short blast of the whistle when about two hundred yards from the Coit. Capt. Duer immediately stopped his boat and backed. The Pentz struck the Coit on the starboard side, aft of the gangway, a glancing blow, which burst the joinder work in. This caused a great deal of confusion on board the Coit for a short time. Captain Duer stopped his boat, as she was backing, and lay still for a few moments, to find out what damage had been done to the Pentz, and finding that the damage done the Coit was not much, proceeded to Washington with his passengers, and landed them without loss of life or any one being crippled.

Richmond and Danville Matters.

The Richmond and West Point Terminal Railway and Warehouse Company, through John A. Rutherford, its second vice president, late yesterday in New York confessed judgment to Frederick Hudekoper and Reuben Foster, receivers of the Richmond and Danville Railroad Company, for $181,906, due in five notes dated March 4, 8, April 16, 30, and May 2, 1892.

The company has also confessed judgment for $30,115 to Wm. Clyde for money loaned on March 30, 1892, and $15,065 to John Malven for advance on March 20, 1892.

Malven and Clyde were two of three who applied to Judge Bond for the appointment of receivers for the Danville Company. It is generally understood that this action is part of a plan to put the Richmond Terminal Company in the hands of a receiver, and an application for a receiver for that company is expected to follow at once. The four parties were in close consultation all day, but refused to make any statement in regard to the affairs of the company during the day. Their position now as independent creditors is expected to give them the right to name the receiver on any application that may be made.

This step, it is thought, is taken in order to facilitate the reorganization by Drexel, Morgan & Co.

The impression has gained currency from interviews with Mr. Spencer that if his firm does take hold of the reorganization the knife will be put in pretty deeply by assessments and scaling of interest. Referring to the matter, one of the largest holders of Terminal and Danville securities says: "It is our understanding that some liberal assessments will be called for, and a general scaling down of interest, but Drexel, Morgan & Co. have been notified that if they go too far they will endanger the success of their plan. The holders of these securities are not in such straits that they are compelled to accept whatever is offered. They are in position now where they can be protected by the receivers long enough to float along until better times come, so that they can carry through a reorganization of their own."

Another large holder of Danville securities says: "I do not know what Drexel, Morgan & Co. propose to do. All I do know is that this is an outside firm, with no prejudices in favor of any special securities, and whatever they propose will undoubtedly be in a form acceptable to all security-holders. At any rate I think the largest holders of these securities are ready to accept what they offer, although we are frank to say that we will not accept Drexel, Morgan & Co.'s plan unless the proposition strikes us as fair."

A dispatch from New York says: "The sharp decline in Richmond Terminal securities is accounted for by the following statement from Reuben Hudekoper: 'The City Bank notified us Monday that it could sell the securities held as collateral for an overdue time loan of $100,000 at the office of A. H. Miller & Co. at 12:30 today if the loan is not paid. We have no authority from the court to pay the loan. I have had a conference with the City Bank officials, but failed to change them from their purpose. Several other loans are due and unpaid, but the holders have acted wisely and prudently and given extensions or refrained from demanding payment.'"

The Baltimore committee of the underlying Richmond and Danville bondholders met Monday. The committee will await proposition or otherwise from the Richmond and Danville reorganization.

Negro Education.

[Correspondence of the Alexandria Gazette.]

NORFOLK, Va., June 19.—Twenty years have rolled by since the State of Virginia undertook to make reliable citizens, good laborers and honorable men and women of the negro population by affording them scholastic advantages. Many public speakers and newspaper correspondents have made themselves busy in assuring the world of the great progress of the negro race within the last two decades. On one occasion a minister of the Gospel saw a negro slave plowing with a yoke of oxen in a new ground and heard him cursing and swearing at a furious rate. He expostulated with Sam, and as an inducement for the adoption of a more conservative course pointed to the example of Job. Sam's reply was: "Ah, master, Job never had to plow with steers in a new ground." So our correspondent would say about those who have such exalted opinions of the colored race, at least in Norfolk. "They have never dealt with them as cooks, house-servants, hostlers or in any way in which they were so useful and reliable before they had so-called educational advantages." I can say, without fear of successful contradiction, that nine in ten of them are utterly unreliable and worthless, and a few more years of schooling will render the whole race brutish, stolid and a seething mass of moral corruption. The vast sums of money which have been spent in providing for them free schools have been worse than wasted, for they are disqualifying them for everything reliable and useful.

I knew a slave who hired himself from his master and in a few years purchased his freedom, as well as that of his wife and children, bought an excellent farm of more than 200 acres with a new two-story dwelling house. Another hired himself, carried on the shoe-making business, employing often ten or twelve journeymen shoemakers at a time, and when the war came he was a prosperous man. After the war he engaged in politics, lost all he had made and died a miserable outcast. Another, in a quiet way, making baskets, mats, &c., made and loaned out money, his master often borrowing sums and giving his bonds for the same. So I could give many instances of the progress and prosperity of slaves in one neighborhood, where now, under the influence of freedom and free schools, all is poverty and wretchedness. Alas! poor negro.

For a few months before the beginning of the abolition war the GAZETTE was the most enterprising and interesting paper I ever read, and I congratulate it upon the evidence it furnishes of renewed life and energy following the dark night of the recent past.

MONETARY AND COMMERCIAL.

NEW YORK, June 22.—In the stock market this morning the remains of yesterday's animation were manifest, but were confined to a few stocks as usual. The opening was made at but slight changes either way from last night's prices, but realizations were plentiful on the advances made yesterday and fractional concessions were the rule in the early dealings. The selling movement, however, did not advance towards the end of the hour and intense dullness again overspread the list while prices tended to recovery. The late dealings were devoid of further upward movement and at 11 o'clock the market was very dull and steady generally at a shade under the opening figures.
